

America's Working Parents Deserve Paid Family Leave

Too many working parents are left to struggle on their own when a new child arrives or a family member is taken ill because they do not have the security of job-protected, paid time away from work. It is time for Congress to take action to support working families!

Tens of thousands of men and women representing working families in all 50 states are calling on Congress to support a national paid leave insurance program that would make it easier for all working parents to take the time they need when a new child arrives. Paid leave is a wise investment. It contributes to improved health and both short- and long-term economic security for workers and families. When workers have access to paid leave, businesses, communities and taxpayers reap the benefits. The time for action is now.

Paid leave saves government and taxpayer money. Recent research from the Center for Women and Work at Rutgers shows that both women and men who take paid leave are significantly less likely to rely on public assistance or food stamps after a child's birth. And women who take paid leave are more likely to be working nine to 12 months after the child's birth. Thus, giving workers access to paid leave can save precious resources while providing families with the stability they desperately need.

Dear Congress,

The arrival of a new child should be a time of pure celebration. Sadly, for millions of working parents in the United States without paid family leave, the joyous occasion can be short-lived. When a new child arrives, many of these parents have to make an impossible choice between taking the first few critical weeks off of work to bond with their new child, or returning to work in order to keep their job and protect their family's economic security.

Some leading business owners have recognized that paid leave has benefits for everyone and established paid leave for their employees. But only 11 percent of workers in this country have access to paid family leave through employers. Fewer than 40 percent have access to personal medical leave through an employer-provided temporary disability insurance program. Too many working parents are left to struggle on their own.

Currently, the United States is the only developed country that does not ensure working parents can take job-protected, paid time away from work to bond with a new child. California and New Jersey are paving the way to a more family friendly nation with paid family leave insurance programs for new parents. It is time for the United States as a whole to follow their lead.

America's working parents and their children deserve better. That's why I support a national paid leave insurance program that would make it easier for all working parents to take the time they need when a new child arrives.

Sincerely,

We support a national paid leave insurance program.
